Programs

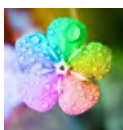

I enjoyed attending our guild meeting in March. So good to see everyone again, visiting with friends and new members. One event that we all enjoyed together was the sharing of projects our members finished during the time we were apart. It was amazing to see such beautiful quilts, embroidery, and home decor our members completed.

Thanks to all of those who participated in this program.

April's program will be, 1's, 2's, or 3's, Dividing Quilt Top Pieces Into Manageable Sections To Sew.

We will have a handout and an activity to work on together for this program. Hoping you enjoy it. See you all the on April 21st.

Wanted:

Do you have a fun story of a trying quilt, or say, maybe about the recent mailings of a fabric block chain letter, or anything you would enjoy sharing.

I would love to hear share your story.

A Quilter's Journey

The continued saga of the Bargello quilt.

I know you're on pins and needles(sorry for the pun)

Will our questions be answered?

- Will Sarah find the lost strips?
- Will Sarah finish section B?
- Will Sarah still be stressed ?

The saga continues where she left off:

I needed one more strip of two different fabrics. I took the scraps I had left and sewed them together. This made a strip, one half the width of fabric but wide enough.

Now, how to figure where to sew these into the strip.

After looking at where they were in the "strip set" colored diagram, I just guessed. I started cutting my strips and found my way out.(Voila) I had a few pieces which I had discarded in making the wave. (Ta-da)

After using them I still needed more (sigh). I only needed to cut a few more strips. It looked like I was going to have about 18 inches left of the strip set. So I started at the bottom and un-sewed enough to finish.(Sigh again) I just had the two borders left to sew on and I was finished with the top.

STRESS GONE NOW HAPPY FACE. 😊

Now how to quilt it !!!!!!!

Needless to say this is the ONLY bargello for me.

Library Corner

Hello, members.

I have just completed a physical inventory of our SABQG Library, and I need help finding and returning these missing books. There seem to be many, many books checked out, so it seems that our library is a valuable guild resource.

Please take a few minutes to read over the list and look around to see if you might have forgotten you checked one out before this long break from guild activity. If you still need the book, please see me to re-borrow the book at the next meeting.

Thank you. - Loretta
